How Often Do Governors Say No?

Each bill passed by the Legislature shall be presented to the Governor. It becomes a statute if it is signed by the Governor. The Governor may veto it by returning it with any objections to the house of origin, which shall enter the objections in the journal and proceed to reconsider it.

California Constitution, Article IV, §10 (a)

- Governor Brown vetoed his lowest percentage of bills (11%) since returning to office in 2010.
- Governor Brown's veto rate (12.34%) during his current term (2010-2013) is higher than his veto rate during his first two terms (4.4%).
- Governor Brown considered 896 bills in 2013, compared to 996 in 2012 and 870 in 2011.
- In his first three years in office (1975-77), Governor Brown considered 4,318 bills; during the past three years (2011-13), he has considered 2,762 bills.
- Governors Deukmejian and Schwarzenegger still hold the record for the most bills vetoed in a year, 436 (1990) and 414 (2008), respectively. Schwarzenegger vetoed one of three bills sent to him in 2008 (35.17%).
- In 1982, Governor Brown vetoed just 30 bills of the 1,674 he considered, setting the record for the lowest number of vetoes and the lowest veto rate (1.79%).
- Governor Pat Brown acted on about 7,500 bills during his two terms as Governor (1958-66). He vetoed (including "pocket vetoes") 512 bills, or about 6%.
- During the last five years, legislators have passed fewer bills than in any other five year period since 1967.
- Governor Deukmejian vetoed the most bills (2,298 over eight years). However, with 1,970 vetoes over his seven years in office, Governor Schwarzenegger's annual average (281) is close to Governor Deukmejian's annual average of 287 vetoes per year.
- Governor Schwarzenegger vetoed three times as many bills in seven years (1,970) as Brown did in his first eight years (528) and twice as many as Governor Reagan in eight years (843).
- During his 11 years in office, Governor Brown has signed 13,299 bills.

From 1849 until the voters passed Proposition 1A (1966), governors could stop bills from becoming law by holding onto them. Proposition 1A ended the use of the so-called "pocket veto" by amending the California Constitution.

In the 1990s, each house of the Legislature introduced "bill limits" for each member. Currently, the limit is set at 40 bills in a two-year session.

Chaptered and Vetoed Bills: 1967-2013

Notes

This information only counts the bills from Regular Sessions, not the bills in Extraordinary Sessions.

The “Chaptered Bills” column on page 3 includes bills that a governor allowed to become law without signature. See California Constitution, Article IV, §10 (b)(3). For example, in 2000, Governor Davis signed 1,088 bills and allowed four measures to become law without his signature for a total of 1,092 chaptered bills. In 2011, Governor Brown allowed one bill to become law without his signature.

For 2010, the “Chaptered Bills” column on page 3 includes four bills signed by Lieutenant Governor Abel Maldonado, as Acting Governor.

The numbers of chaptered bills come from the bound statutes for each year, plus information from the Office of the Governor. The numbers of vetoes come from file records kept in the Office of the Governor.

Robert Williams, Deputy Legislative Secretary in several administrations, started those files in the 1950s. In subsequent administrations, the Governor’s legislative staff has maintained the files that Williams started. See page 6 for those sources.
